"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Bo-

An Episcopal schree's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

J. F. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior.

Mosquitoes of California.

Glowing accounts induced us to try the southern mines, and a passage to Stockton was secured on an old tub of a schooner at the rate of three ounces of gold, or thirty-six dollars per head. The deck was crowded with men of every nationality. The rolling hills, tawny and flecked with green trees, bounding the bay of San Francisco, Suisun and San Pablo, were novel and interesting. The very color of the earth, covered with wild oats or dried grass, suggested a land of gold. The sight was inspiring. But when we reached the mouth of the San Joaquin our miseries began.

This river has an extraordinarily tortuous course, almost entirely through tule or marsh lands, that in 1849 produced bushels of voracious mosquitoes to the acre. I had never known the like before. It seemed as if there was a stratum of swarming insect life ten feet thick over the surface of the earth. I corded my trousers tight to my boot legs to prevent them from pulling up, donned a thick coat, though the heat was intolerable, shielded my neck and face with handkerchiefs and put on buckskin gloves, and in that condition parboiled and smothered. In spite of all precautions our faces were much swollen with the poison of numberless bites.

To escape the hot sun we took refuge below deck, and to drive away the pests a smudge was made on some sand in the bottom of the boat, which filled the hold almost to suffocation. The mosquitoes were too ravenous to be wholly foiled by smoke. I think I never endured such vexation and suffering. Sleep was impossible. The boat had to be worked by hand around the numerous bends, and half the time the sails were useless for want of wind. It was a burning calm in the midst of a swamp. But even in our distress there was a humorous side, provoking grim smiles at least.—E. G. Waite in Century.

To Improve the Lungs.

A device recently invented for the promotion of deep breathing is likely to be of value to flat chested, round shouldered and weak lunged people. The device is a small belt or cord which encircles the chest at the point of its greatest expansion, and a take up mechanism to which the ends of the belt or cord are attached. The take up mechanism consists of a coiled spring, adapted to tighten the belt at intervals, and a train of wheels, by which the speed of the spring in taking up the belt may be regulated. Upon the exhalation of the breath, after the full expansion of the lungs, the chest returns to the size natural to it in ordinary breathing, thus leaving the belt loose. Immediately the take up mechanism begins to gather in the slack of the belt, which it continues to gather, and finally it tightens the belt about the chest until the pressure is uncomfortable to the wearer, and compels him to take another full inspiration, thus lengthening the belt.

This lengthening is accomplished by the withdrawal of the strap from the case, which act again coils the spring. The spring in turn, when the breath is exhaled and the chest resumes its natural size, again begins to gather up the slack of the belt. These processes continue as long as the device is worn. It is claimed that the device induces full breaths at intervals, and thus naturally strengthens and enlarges the lungs and chest.—New York Telegram.

Our World Be Aristocrats.

Thousands of American young men of fair education and excellent possibilities, captivated by the pictures of English aristocratic life drawn in English novels, are learning to despise the simple, rational, useful life of the worthy American citizen, and to court consideration and vulgar popularity by adopting the habits and leading the useless lives of English lords. As is usual in such cases the copy is a caricature of the original. The untitled American lord proves usually to be a vulgar creature, having to assert his self-conferred lordship by all that is most unattractive, most inhumane and most un-American—and that is a good deal—in the English aristocrat.

In England aristocracy has no need to display or to obtrude itself; in America it can exist only by display and obtrusion. For this reason the American would be nobleman must necessarily court attention and try to strike the vulgar imagination by the mere accidentals of aristocracy, such as any boorish Dives can command—houses, horses, turnouts, yachts, opera boxes and the like. And the vulgar are impressed by such things, bow down in servile reverence before them and do their best to make a similar display.—Professor Thomas Davidson in Forum.

The Silent Boatman.

"Who can swim? Who can swim?" shouted a man who wanted to cross a river in a boat. A crowd of boatmen gathered round him, crying, "I can, signore, I can!"

Only one was silent and remained in his boat all the time.

"And can't you swim?" inquired the stranger.

"No," was the man's curt reply.

"Then you shall take me across."

The gentleman had adopted this method to escape the importunity of rival boatmen. In that part of the country; perhaps also he shrewdly suspected that a man who could not swim would be the safer pilot.—Captain Francassa.

A Rival of the Comstock in Southern Nye.

The Examiner, of Wednesday, says: If the reports that were received in this city yesterday are not exaggerated, there is about to be developed at Montgomery, Nye county, Nevada, a gold mine that threatens to eclipse the famous Comstock lode. The magnitude of the discovery that is said to have been made will be understood by men familiar with mining affairs when it is stated that a pocket of coarse gold valued at from $6,000 to $7,000 was uncovered in the Chispa mine, which is owned by George Montgomery and others.

This statement is contained in a letter sent to a gentleman in this city by Frank H. Seely, the well-known mining expert, who wrote from Montgomery under date of May 24th. He said in his letter that it was one of the finest discoveries he ever saw, and that many other men who have seen the property concur in his opinion.

CORROBORATIVE STATEMENTS.

Among those whom Mr. Seely names as having seen the pocket of gold, are George O'Brien of Tuscarora fame, W. Sheridan, a well-known Virginia City expert, and Duff Brown, who gained his knowledge of mines during years of experience in this State and who was not only one of the original locators of the Tuscarora bonanzas, but was also one of the Deep Creek, Utah, discoverers.

Mr. Seely wrote that the gentlemen named pronounce the Montgomery find one of the best prospects in Nevada, it being in a thoroughly mineralized belt, and there being no reason, judging from the indications, why it should not be a second Comstock. Mr. Seely also stated that the North Belle mine, which is owned by the Yount brothers, and is located three miles north of the Chispa, shows coarse gold in paying quantities. It has a shaft fifty feet deep and a crosscut twenty feet deep to the south, cutting the ledge, which is six feet wide.

It prospects well in gold and sulphurets, which contain silver and lead.

A north crosscut, writes Mr. Seely, shows a stringer of gold-bearing quartz, which widens as it sinks and carries better indications than many of the gold-bearing mines of California and Colorado that he has seen. The walls are of slate and porphyry, and the ore is plainly defined.

Altogether Mr. Seely gives a very glowing account of the prospects at Montgomery.

EXPERTS THERE NOW.

R. E. Kelly, the mining secretary, who represents a syndicate which has been formed in this city to operate in the new district, has also received advice from Montgomery which portray the find up there in glowing colors. His information is in the nature of a report from Messrs. Sheridan and J. O'Brien, the experts who were sent to Montgomery to investigate the prospects. They state that the find was made while blasting out on the croppings for the shaft house. They secured from 10 to 12 pounds of gold from about 40 pounds of rock. They state that the ore taken from the North Belle mine will average $20 to the ton.

From Irvine Fitzgerald, the well-known mining man, it was learned that the Chispa mine is supposed to be located on the site of the fabulously rich Breyfogle mine which was lost by the prospector who found it many years ago. Years were spent in the effort to relocate the Breyfogle mine, and the search proving fruitless, it was finally abandoned. Old miners think Montgomery has accidentally struck the long lost site.

THE INSANE ASYLUM.

The Number of Inmates Steadily Increasing.

There are now in the State Insane Asylum at Reno, over 190 patients. Three years ago there were only about 160. Since Dr. Thomas took charge of the institution, less than three months ago, sixteen new patients have been received. The Genoa Courier says: With a yearly increase of ten inmates, regardless of death and discharges, the Asylum will soon be overrun. There are many patients who do not belong in an insane asylum, but as this is the only institution in the State for the care of such unfortunate beings, the difficulty is one hard to overcome. Many inebriates and feeble minded people are sent to the Asylum. For them cure is hopeless and they will remain there until death removes them. It is very unjust to confine a harmless, feeble-minded person in the same place with a hopeless lunatic, yet those in charge of our State Asylum are powerless to remedy this evil.

"A ROYAL PASS."

Encomiums Showered Upon the Star.

Mr. George C. Staley, in "A Royal Pass," although new to us, is widely and favorably known in other localities, and needs only to be seen to at once establish himself as a favorite. The press everywhere has showered encomiums upon Mr. Staley for his individual performance, the high order of merit maintained in his play and the excellence of his company. In addition to a handsome person and great dramatic ability, Mr. Staley is the possessor of a sweet-singing voice which he uses with good effect during the play, by appropriately introducing a number of beautiful songs, the greatest favorites being entitled, "My Heart's Delight," and "Little Rogue's Asleep."

The company will appear at McKissick's Opera House next Tuesday evening, June 9th. Box sheet open at Hodgkinson's drug store.

Woman and Her Foot Wear.

"Please try the left shoe on," said the lady who sat next me in a shoe store. "Why was that?" I asked the man who had served her, when she departed. "Hole in her stocking. Oh, yes, you would hardly believe how many ladies have holes in their stockings. We always know it. It's 'try the right shoe on,' or the left, 'never mind the other.' Some of them say: 'I'm afraid I have a little break in my stocking. I didn't expect to get my shoes tried today.' And often the little break horrifies them, having grown to a big break during the day. Oh, yes; little breaks come sometimes, and the lady herself does not know it till the shoe is removed. In those cases she usually says nothing, but just blushes. The hole is always a genuine case of accident when a woman takes it that way. Sometimes they gasp, so that we shall see how surprised they are; but then some women pretend that. We can usually tell the real thing. A successful shoe salesman needs peculiar gifts of tact and the genius of patience," this one continued.

"When a woman has a really large foot it's best to bring a shoe slightly too small, and then appear surprised that it does not fit. 'Some feet look smaller than a really smaller foot' is a good explanation of your error. Bring to the woman who has a genuinely tiny foot a shoe too big and then fit down to her. Nothing pleases her so much. A salesman influences the buyer tremendously. I believe a woman would rather have her foot praised than be told she is clever. Always humor a woman with a big foot. 'You can wear a much smaller shoe than this, of course, but you want this for really comfortable wear.' That makes her want to hug you."—New York Sun

Wooden Lace.

Lace making in America is still an infant industry, though the continent can claim the only lace tree yet discovered. It is the lazette, or lace tree of Jamaica, whose inner bark can be separated into layers of very pretty mesh. Queen Victoria has had a dress of it, presented by the people of that loyal colony. His Majesty Charles II had only a cravat. History does not record if he wore it. It does tell, though, of a wooden lace cravat that must have been much more desirable. It was carved by the famous Grilling Gibbons in imitation of point lace, and was so flexible that it could be tied or folded without injury.

The Duke of Devonshire was its first owner. Gibbons gave it to him upon the completion of Chatsworth, the magnificent. In some manner it came into the hands of Horace Walpole, who delighted to wear it when he had special guests of honor at Strawberry Hill.—New York Herald.

Summer Wear for Men.

In town the straw hats will be worn with the tropical textures, for the cap would be out of harmony with the urban surroundings. Nor will the sash—with its dressified artificiality—be deemed in chime with the hurly burly of business activity. The waist belt might do, for it does not look so delicate. The flannel shirt is not the overhead garment of city wear, and a stiff collar upon it out of town would be a combination warranting exorcism by all good men and true. The cheviot shirt in patterns to the taste, and a wide cravat to tone therewith, seems to be the veriest inspiration of summer vogue in Gotham.—Clothes and Furnishings.

Poor, Indeed, but Rich in Dogs.

One of the assessors relates an odd experience in Bucktown, near Indianapolis. He called at the house of an old woman, whose furniture was valued at fifty cents. Under the law he had to place the value at one dollar, which would make her tax a fraction over a cent. As he was about to leave the house he discovered that the old woman was the happy owner of six dogs, on which she was assessed eleven dollars.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Steady Hand at Eighty.

Mr. Billa Kittredge, the famous penman of this city, has recently received a number of books and a map of the United States from Vice President Morton in acknowledgment of some of Mr. Kittredge's fine work. Mr. Kittredge is soon to write on the back of a postal card the last address delivered by the late Secretary Windom.—Belfast (Me.) Age

Marriage a Failure.

A Bowenville widower wants to get married. His fiancée, a maiden lady of Globe Village, is ready for the ceremony, but the b. w. is halting, necessarily on account of a little financial difficulty. He has been contracting numerous bills with "butchers and bakers and candlestick makers" at the North End, and hasn't made much effort to pay them. He sent to Canada for $100 to get married with, and ordered it sent by express. A grocer, who is one of his creditors, heard of the plan, and when the money arrived at the express office it was attached, and the maiden still waits for the widower.—Fall River (Mass.) News.

PTOMAIN POISONING.
Cases of Considerable Rarity in the History of the Healing Art.
The husband and two children of the poisoned family in Highlands are better.
It is a case of ptomaine poisoning, and the fact that that kind of poisoning is exceedingly rare makes it most interesting. It comes from putrid meats and vegetables, and also exists in cheese. It is a poisonous salt developed in the process of putrefaction, and a case of this kind of poisoning is rarely seen so marked as this case, because it is seldom that people eat meats that are pronouncedly tainted.

In this case the meat was in the most dangerous stage, and all that ate it were very sick. An evidence which shows that this was a case of ptomaine poisoning resulting from the meat is that the family upstairs ate some of the same meat, which was cooked, and were very sick for two days, but recovered. Symptoms of this kind of poisoning, according to Dr. Lutze's statement, are violent vomiting and purging and a pinched expression of the face. This is often mistaken by the best physicians for other troubles, and such a mistake is not surprising when the best chemists do not thoroughly understand the nature of these cases and the poison.

It is a blood poison by absorption, and its effect is first upon the blood, producing tissues of the capillary circulation. In reality death commences at the surface and continues inwardly until the heart is reached. Its secondary effect is on the vasomotor nerves which regulate the circulation. Dr. Lutze called Dr.
Sowers in consultation on the case, and both are satisfied that this is a clear case of ptomaine poisoning.
Regarding the rarity of such cases Dr.
Lutze says he has in his practice never seen but one, and that was the case of a man in New Jersey. In that instance the cause was putrid fish. A whole family was stricken down and five died. Dr.
Sowers says he never saw a case with fatal results before. In giving the peculiar effects of the poison he cited a medical work which is compiled from the best authorities over the world:
"No characteristic post-mortem appearances are recognizable. The body is emaciated and the skin bleached and parchment-like. Rigor mortis begins early and continues longer than usual, and putrefaction is delayed in some cases, but very rapid in others. The mucous membrane of the mouth and pharynx is often white, dry and parchment-like or horny. The mucous membrane is frequently congested and sometimes cachy-matic. The spleen is sometimes enlarged, congested and extremely soft and friable. The blood, as a rule, is dark and contains no foreign organisms or elements. The corpuscles are unaltered.
The lungs are frequently congested and oedematous."
"Often," says Dr. Lutze, "the symptoms are the same as in the case of arsenic poisoning, but this is not always so."—Denver News.

Eyes of Different People.
Eyes have always been regarded as a sure tribal characteristic. Tacitus, for example, describes the Germans as "fierce, with blue eyes and red hair."
The Celts are mentioned as being swarthy skinned and black eyed; the Gauls are red haired and light eyed, while the Nubians, the Turks, the Egyptians and the Italians have always been spoken of as "the dark eyed races." These peculiarities have not changed. Even today the people of the temperate zones have generally light colored eyes, while those of the torrid and the frigid zones are usually dark, or even black. Of the races in particular, the only one that can be said to be "light eyed" is the Caucasian, and even in this race the eyes are by no means uniform in point of color.
The whole period of human history goes to prove that the light haired, blue eyes races are capable of the highest degree of civilization, but it does not by any means follow that the highest degree of civilization is confined to people of blonde complexion. There was a time when a blue eyed person was rarely seen, and today seven-eighths of the world's inhabitants have dark eyes. Lavater, when discussing the eye as a feature in national physiognomy, gave the following as the results of his observations:
"The Italians have small eyes; the Germans, light colored eyes surrounded by many wrinkles; the English, strong, open, steadfast eyes; and the Swiss, eyes that are very dull looking."—St. Louis Republic.

He Had a Friend at Court.
A laugh was raised in the United States district court by the testimony of John Boye, a resident of Lewiston, N. Y.
Boye is old and somewhat deaf, and gave his testimony with an air of childlike innocence. The following dialogue took place on cross examination: "Did Richard ever tell you?" "Yes." "Did he beat you?" "No." "You beat him?" "Yes."
"Did he tell you trouble and expense?"
"Yes, a little." "You had to hire a lawyer?" "No." "Did he hire a lawyer?"
"Yes." "You did not have one?" "No."
"A man put a fogger and try cases you?" "Yes." "No." "What did you do?" "I was sued, if you did not hire a lawyer." "I got the magistrate." "The judge that followed this trial?" "Yes." "The importance of having a lawyer at the court."—Utica Observer.

SUMMONS.
IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE STATE of Nevada, in and for Washoe county. The State of Nevada sends to Mary C. Carroll, its Attorney General, to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant, by Wm. H. Carroll as plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of day of service), if served in said county, or within days if served out of said county, but within said District, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The action is brought to recover a judgment and decree of divorce, forever dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between you, the said Mary C.
Carroll, and the said William H. Carroll, and declaring that there is no community property to be adjudicated, and that the property of which he is now owner is his own separate property.
The said action is brought on the ground of desortion of him on your part for a period of more than one year last past prior to the commencement of this action. All of which you are fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, at Reno, in said county, and to which you are specially referred.
And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded.
In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand at Reno, this 23d day of March, A. D. 1891.
